About Gunnersbury Park

Situated in the heart of west London and nestled between Chiswick and Ealing, we're delighted to welcome you to Gunnersbury Park. Set in 72 hectares of beautiful parkland, Gunnersbury Park is a Grade II* listed historic site and is an elegant and distinctively unique space for your event. The estate has notable significance having been owned and developed as a private country estate by both Princess Amelia, the daughter of King George II, in the eighteenth century and Baron Lionel de Rothschild and his family in the nineteenth century before finally becoming a public park in 1926.

Following a recent £21m restoration, the Park has been returned to its' former glory and now provides a magnificent backdrop for any celebration.

Within the estate, we are delighted to be able to offer the magnificent Regency Gunnersbury Park House, the stunning, glass Orangery and the classical Temple for your enjoyment. Whether you are looking to host an intimate wedding ceremony, celebrate that special occasion or entertain business guests in style, then you need look no further. With such a rich history of entertaining across the centuries, it's a pleasure to invite you and your guests to one of the jewels in the West London crown of corporate and private entertaining.
